'OK, you got me': Magnotta caught

Luka Rocco Magnotta, 29, is seen posing in one of the many pictures of him posted on the Internet. Magnotta, who is suspected of murdering and dismembering a Chinese student in Montreal, was arrested in a Berlin cyber-café on Monday while reading about himself on the web. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Narcissism. Montreal police say accused fugitive's obsession with himself on the Internet led to his downfall in Berlin

The international manhunt for Canadian fugitive Luka Rocco Magnotta ended Monday in a Berlin Internet café, where the alleged killer was arrested after being spotted reading news reports about himself.

Berlin police said they were called into the small business near the city centre after someone inside recognized Magnotta, who was at a terminal surfing the Internet.

A department spokesman said Magnotta initially tried to give officers false names, but then conceded: "OK, you got me."

Magnotta, 29, is facing five charges in Montreal, including first-degree murder, in the brutal slaying and dismemberment of Jun Lin, a Chinese national who was studying at Concordia University.

His capture came less than a week after police issued a warrant for his arrest in connection with Lin's death — a macabre killing that grabbed international headlines and shocked people around world.

Lin's torso was found stuffed inside a suitcase on a Montreal curb outside Magnotta's apartment building last Tuesday. Other body parts, including a hand and foot, were mailed separately to the offices of political parties in Ottawa.

Montreal police said Magnotta fled Canada for France about a day after Lin's death, which is believed to have occurred sometime overnight between May 24 and May 25.

Magnotta was seen in Paris over the weekend — more than 1,000 kilometres from Berlin — and, after several days of police work from forces on two continents, authorities finally apprehended him without incident.

"He did not resist," Chief Supt. Stefan Redlich of Berlin police said in a phone interview.

"He was arrested without a fight."

The owner of the café, in Berlin's working-class Neukölln district, said Magnotta had come in to read online news reports about himself when one of his employees thought he looked familiar.

Grading

Zeroes a last resort in Calgary schools

Teachers are generally discouraged from giving a grade of zero to Calgary students, according to officials with the city's two school boards.

This comes as an Edmonton schoolteacher appears primed to lose his job of 35 years for refusing to back down from marking goose eggs on incomplete work submitted by some of his high school students.

Ronna Mosher, a director in the office of the Calgary Board of Education's chief superintendent, said decisions on student assessment are laid out by school principals — the same practice is used in Edmonton — but no CBE school she was aware of has outlawed zero grades.

"If it's a problem that the student doesn't understand (the material), then we need to address that. If it's a time-management issue, then we need to address that," Mosher said.

A Calgary Catholic School District spokesperson said that board uses a similar process for student evaluation.

Some parents have openly criticized the no-zero policy enforced by the Edmonton school Lynden Dorval was teaching at, claiming it does little to prepare students for the real world.

But the Alberta Teachers' Association (ATA) is refraining from advocating on the teacher's behalf, noting Dorval did disobey a direction from his boss.

"Certainly this is an area that requires more research on our part," said ATA president Carol Henderson.

Even as his last days drew near, Andrew Szpecht's spirit never faltered.

While on a post-graduation trip of a lifetime to Australia in January 2011, the 23-year-old Calgarian was diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumour, known as glioblastoma multiforme.

Online

- For more information about the Spring Sprint, head to braintumour.ca. You can also head to metronews.ca/calgary for a link to the Szpecht-acular Sprinters home page, where you can donate or join to run with the team.

There is no cure.

He immediately underwent surgery and doctors removed 80 to 90 per cent of the mass. After returning home, Szpecht went into a fighter mode of sorts, eating healthy and working out hours each day.

"He was doing everything he could to beat the disease," said his father, John Szpecht.

But earlier this year, the reality of Andrew's situation caught up with him. His vision and motor function rapidly deteriorated and a last-ditch clinical trial was having little effect.

By April, Andrew was bound to a wheelchair — doctors later revealed there was more tumour than brain remaining on his left side.

John's last exchange with his son occurred while he clipped Andrew's nails before taking him to the hospital for the last time.

"I cut too close and drew some blood," John said, tears welling in his eyes. "I looked up and (said), 'Andrew, gee, I cut you, I'm sorry.' He said to me, 'No worries, Dad. S— happens.'"

Andrew died May 7.

But before that, he had expressed interest in taking part in Calgary's Spring Sprint, a fundraising event hosted annually by the Brain Tumour Foundation of Canada.

As a tribute, more than 140 friends, family and even inspired strangers plan to lace up and run in Andrew's honour as members of the Szpecht-acular Sprinters team. So far, they have raised more than $35,000 for the foundation — more than any other team in 20 events across Canada.

"It's absolutely unbelievable to see how many lives he touched," said his sister, Amanda Szpecht. "Just to know that support is there for us is amazing."

Rescue. Pair pulled from river

The Calgary Fire Department pulled two people from the Bow River on Monday.

A man in his early 30s went into the river near Shouldice Park and a woman in her 50s, not associated with the man, jumped into the water to save him, according to EMS spokesperson Stuart Brideaux. They were swept downstream before being rescued.

Both were taken to the Foothills Hospital in stable condition, suffering from mild hypothermia and exhaustion.

It's unclear why the man entered the river. METRO

Funding cuts. Canadian Heritage program will wind up at the end of 2012-13 fiscal year

KATIE TURNER

Calgary, along with the Niagara Region, will be the last to hold the title of Cultural Capital of Canada following the federal government's decision to cancel the program.

Officials from Canadian Heritage did not respond to Metro's interview requests by press time, but a statement on the federal government's website states the program will be cut at the end of the 2012-13 fiscal year.

As the cultural organization Calgary 2012 unveils events around the city, officials say it's unfortunate other communities won't receive the same funding and notoriety that comes along with the Cultural Capital title.

"We felt really grateful to have been part of the program's legacy," said Calgary 2012 executive director Karen Ball, adding the city received a $1.625-million commitment from the feds.

"Obviously, the investment from the federal government has been put to good use, but it's more the designation that has a higher value for us because it allows us to say, yes, Calgary has culture."

Ald. Brian Pincott advocated for city council to contribute to the year-long celebration before Calgary was named as the cultural capital. "I think it's a mistake that they've cancelled the program," he said. "Calgary 2012 would not have happened had it not been for the program."

Pilot project helping city get greener by the day

Calgary's greening up — literally and figuratively.

The city launched its green cart pilot project back in March, part of the 80/20 goal to reduce landfill waste by 2020.

grains, fruits, veggies, as well as yard and animal waste.

Another question asked is whether this will affect participants' previous composting activities, and Loft-house said no.

"Most people will use their backyard composter for their vegetable and fruit scraps and some yard waste and really, that's all they should put in there because backyard composters don't generate enough heat to break down any pathogens."

Green Calgary has sold personal composters for almost a decade, and executive director Patricia Cameron also believes the two programs can work together.

"(It's) going to be a very complementary and powerful program to have home composting and then the materials that can't be home composted taken care of by the city where they can still do good."

But the city program won't be implemented until 2015, so Cameron believes backyard composters are a

Grand-prize Eddies winner Scott Irwin accepts his award for his Everything Is Better On Ice video, which showed three people attempting street curling on sticky ice using a beer cooler. CELESTE DE MUELENAERE/FOR METRO

Curling spoof video wins Big Rock Brewery award

Eddies. Consumers can truly capture the essence of the beer, says brewery marketing director

DE MUELENAERE

Ever watch a TV commercial and think, "I could make a better ad than that?"

Well Scott Irwin didn't just think it, he actually did it.

For 19 years Big Rock Brewery, and its founder Ed McNally, has vetoed expensive ad campaigns in favour of consumer-generated content.

Having the people who know the product is the best way to capture its essence in advertising, said marketing administrator for the craft beer company Christy Sterling.

Every year Big Rock Brewery receives hundreds of print and video submissions for its Eddies contest, the Top 18 of which get screened at the Big Rock Eddies Awards — a parody version of the Oscars.

On Monday night the coveted bragging rights of Big Rock Eddies first-place video and $10,000 grand prize was awarded to Calgarian Scott Irwin whose video featured a spoof on curling.

Irwin said that while the Eddies statue is "really really nice," nothing beats the $10,000 prize, the bulk of which will go towards purchasing new equipment for next year's Eddies commercial.

"We really enjoy doing this type of stuff, so hopefully it's just the beginning for us," he added.

The intention of the Eddies awards gala is not only for crowning the most creative beer drinkers for their submissions. It also raises funds for local charities such as One Yellow Rabbit Performance Theatre, Calgary Women's Emergency Shelter, and EPCOR CENTRE for the Performing Arts.

Minister aims to avoid labour strife

Alberta's education minister is hoping for labour peace with teachers.

Their contract runs out in August and Jeff Johnson says one of his department's top three priorities is a long-term agreement.

Johnson says the province has invited the teachers and the school boards association to the bargaining table for three-way talks. The other two priorities are passing the new Education Act and building more schools.

Johnson says the Tories plan to keep their election promise of building 50 new schools and modernizing 70 others over the next four years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weather

Hot hot heat for Albertans

Prepare for a heat wave, Albertans. The province will be hotter than average this summer, according to The Weather Network's summer outlook for Canadian provinces, released Monday.

Both Calgary and Edmonton will see above-normal temperatures for the summer months — an average of 22 C for both cities. The province will see a normal amount of precipitation (206 millimetres for Calgary and 246 millimetres for Edmonton), but with dry spots in the southeast and northwest.

A hotter summer and dry spots in the Boreal forest region and the grasslands could have meant an increase of wildfire danger in the province. METRO

Message to construction industry. Companies fined after worker killed

Former development companies Perera Development Corp. and Perera Shawnee Ltd. have been fined more than $2.4 million for the unsafe working conditions that led to the death of a contract truck driver in 2008.

Reports say that the companies were fined a little more than $1.4 million and $1 million respectively in connection to the death of Randy Williams, 47, who was killed when a 15-metre-high wall collapsed.

Provincial court judge Paul Mason reportedly said the fines were intended as a strong message to the construction industry that it must provide safe working conditions at work sites. Reports say that the owner of both businesses, Don Perera, faces 10 similar charges separate from those of his companies. METRO

Badge earned. Honey's a sweet addition to fire team

The Calgary Fire department welcomed a new, four-legged member to its arson investigations team a few weeks ago, and Monday she was awarded her badge.

Honey, a Labrador retriever, will work with fire investigator Brad McDonald to help the fire department identify the locations of accelerant residue.

"What once took a person hours or days to uncover, Honey can now find in a matter of minutes," says John Bordignon, public relations representative for State Farm, the company which sponsored Honey and McDonald's five-week training program.

Acting fire chief Ken Uzeloc says that the new accelerant detection canine team will help the fire department provide a higher level of service to Calgarians.

City hall staffers get their hands dirty

Vegging out. Volunteers planted a variety of produce like tomatoes, cucumbers, mint and strawberries

City hall employees are volunteering their time to take a policy back to the grassroots level — literally.

Around a dozen city staff from various departments used their lunch hour Monday to plant veggies on a small plot on the south side of city hall.

As the office of sustainability prepares to present a food-system assessment and action plan to members of council Wednesday, sustainability consultant Rebecca Newlove said it's fitting that they are putting the report into action.

"I think that ties in nicely with this garden being created," said Newlove. "It's about community coming together, from us sharing together, learning from each other and providing back to the community."

The food system assessment focuses largely on six targets established by the Imagine Calgary plan around local, environmentally sustainable food production.

City environmental specialist, Kyle White, said working in the garden provides a nice break during the day.

"Part of it is a chance to get out and do something with your hands and do something for the community."

Healthy donations

- The city hall garden was initially planted in 2010 and the vegetables harvested are donated to Edwards Place Senior Citizens Apartments.
- The Calgary food assessment and action plan will come before the community and protective services committee at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Nun's sexuality book causes 'grave harm': Vatican

Unorthodox book.

Critique is part of wider Vatican crackdown on group of U.S. sisters

The Vatican on Monday sharply criticized a book on sexuality written by a prominent American nun, saying it contradicted church teaching on issues like masturbation, homosexuality and marriage and that its author had a "defective understanding" of Catholic theology.

The Vatican's orthodoxy office said the book, Just Love: A Framework for Christian Sexual Ethics, by Sister Margaret Farley, a member of the Sisters of Mercy religious order and emeritus professor of Christian ethics at Yale Divinity School, posed "grave harm" to the faithful.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith said that in the 2006 book, Farley either ignored church teaching on core issues of human sexuality or treated it as merely one opinion among many.

Farley said she never intended the book to reflect

Pope Benedict XVI in Bresso, Italy.
ANTONIO CALANNI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

official Catholic teaching. Rather, she said, she wrote it to explore sexuality via various religious traditions, theological resources and human experience.

The Farley critique, signed by the American head of the congregation, Cardinal William Levada, comes amid the Vatican's recent crackdown on the largest umbrella group of American sisters.

The Vatican last month essentially imposed martial law on the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, accusing it of undermining church teaching and imposing certain "radical feminist themes" that were incompatible with Catholicism.

The Vatican singled out specific problems in Farley's book, which it said "affirms positions that are in direct contradiction with Catholic teaching in the field of sexual morality."

Farley, for example, writes that masturbation doesn't raise any moral problems and can actually help relationships.

The Vatican asserted that according to church teaching "masturbation is an intrinsically and gravely disordered action."

Farley wrote that homosexuals and their activities should be respected. Church teaching holds that gays should be respected but that homosexual acts are "intrinsically disordered."

On gay marriage, Farley said legal recognition of gay marriage can help transform the stigmatization of gays. Levada wrote back that approving gay marriage would not only signal approval of "deviant behaviour" but would obscure the value of traditional marriage.

Flood of Syrian refugees strains region's stability, advocacy group says

Costly assistance.

Jordan, Lebanon are not well-positioned to accept thousands fleeing bloodshed

A Washington-based refugee advocacy group called on the world Monday to help Syrians who have fled their country's turmoil, saying they are stretching the meagre resources of Jordan and Lebanon.

Since the Syrian uprising began in March 2011, Jordan has taken in more than 110,000 refugees, and Lebanon 26,000, according to official figures. In Jordan, many refugees are being hosted in private homes, with Jordanian families providing them food and shelter.

Refugees International (RI) warned in a written statement that the Syrian refugee crisis "may threaten the political stability of both Lebanon and Jordan, and the international community must scale up humanitarian and development aid to keep both countries on a firm footing."

With their "economies weak and their politics strained, neither country is well-positioned to accept thousands of poor, vulnerable Syrians — and yet they must, and they have," the group said.

RI president Michel Gabaudan said considering the pressure they are under domestically, with high unemployment and a thinning social safety net, Lebanon and Jordan "have made real efforts to accommodate Syrian refugees." But he added that with thousands of refugees present, the two nations' "social services are being stretched to the limit."

He said that asking the families who are hosting refugees "to spend their own dwindling resources on refugees is untenable and could also spark conflict if aid agencies do not step in."

The Syrian uprising began with mostly peaceful protests calling for change, but has turned into an increasingly militarized conflict. World powers have backed a peace plan that was put forward by UN-Arab League envoy Kofi Annan, but the bloodshed has not stopped.

Russian elections

N.J. Nets owner founds new political party

Mikhail Prokhorov, a Russian tycoon who also contested the recent presidential election, has founded a political party.

Prokhorov tweeted on Monday that the party would focus on the regional elections and help Russia's professional elite make a foray into politics.

Prokhorov, who owns the New Jersey Nets basketball team, came in third in the March election, with nearly eight per cent of the vote.

The 47-year-old has often been accused of being a Kremlin stooge, a claim he has denied.

Prokhorov said, however, that he would not be a party member, and that the party would only have 500 members, which is the smallest membership allowed by the law.

Workers look for ground victims

Nigeria. Red Cross reports at least 110 bodies recovered Monday from residential area after plane crash

Police dogs sniffed for dead bodies Monday in the rubble of buildings destroyed when an airliner crashed into them, killing all 153 aboard, as cranes lifted away heavy pieces of debris in the grisly aftermath of Nigeria's worst air disaster in nearly two decades.

Rescue officials said they fear many more people may have perished on the ground. The airline involved said an investigation had begun into the cause of Sunday's crash.

A Nigeria Red Cross report said 110 bodies had been recovered, with more being dug out from the rubble.

The pilots reported engine trouble before the plane fell out of the sky on a clear afternoon, smashing into businesses and crowded apartment buildings near Lagos' Murtala Muhammed International Airport. The flight was bound for Lagos, Nigeria's commercial centre, from Abuja, the capital. Two years ago, the same MD-83 lost engine power due to a bird strike.

"The fear is that since it happened in a residential area, there may have been many people killed," said Yushau Shuaib, a spokesman for Nigeria's National Emergency Management Agency.

Overnight, officials brought in a large crane from a local construction company to lift the tail of the aircraft and other debris, as well as blow torches to cut through the aircraft wreckage.

The debris still smouldered Monday morning. Some emergency workers wore masks to try and protect themselves from the stench of the dead.

Nigerian President Goodluck Jonathan spent about 20 minutes looking at the wreckage with federal lawmakers and said the crash was a setback to Nigeria's growing aviation industry.

"We will make sure this will not repeat itself in this country," he said, a pledge that will be hard to keep in a nation with a history of major passenger plane crashes in the last 20 years.

Airport security. Israeli security measures cross online boundaries

When Sandra Tamari arrived at Israel's international airport, she received an unusual request: A security agent pushed a computer screen in front of her, connected to Gmail, and told her to "log in."

The agent, suspecting Tamari was involved in pro-Palestinian activism, wanted to inspect her private email account for incriminating evidence. The 42-year-old American of Palestinian descent refused, and was swiftly expelled from the country.

Tamari's experience is not unique. In a cyber-age twist on Israel's vaunted history of airport security, the country has begun to force incoming travellers deemed suspicious to open personal email accounts for inspection, visitors say.

Targeting mainly Muslims or Arabs, the practice appears to be aimed at rooting out visitors who have histories of pro-Palestinian activism, and in recent weeks, has led to the expulsion of at least three American women.

It remains unclear how widespread the practice is. However, asked about Ta-

Security Concern

Israel has become increasingly strict following a series of run-ins with international activists in recent years.

- Two years ago there was a deadly clash between Israeli naval commandos and a flotilla trying to break Israel's naval blockade of the Gaza Strip. Both sides accused the other of provoking the violence, in which nine Turkish activists were killed.

mari's claims, the Shin Bet security agency confirmed she had been interrogated and said its agents acted in accordance with the law.

Israel has a long history of using ethnic profiling, calling it a necessary evil resulting from its bitter experience with terrorist attacks. Arab travellers, and anyone else seen as a risk, are often subjected to intense questioning and invasive inspections, including strip searches.

Eaton Centre. Toronto shooting likely not gang-related, police say

The deadly weekend shooting rampage at the landmark Eaton Centre was not likely gang related, Toronto police said Monday.

Christopher Husbands, 23, of Toronto, turned himself in early Monday and faces one count of first-degree murder and six counts of attempted murder, said Det. Sgt. Brian Borg, the lead investigator in the case.

Husbands is known to police and, at the time of the shooting, was under house arrest for a previous charge, Borg revealed at a news conference.

There are indications that Husbands and the 24-year-old man who died in Saturday's shooting, who police have said was believed to have gang ties, knew each other, Borg added.

Regardless, Borg said, "I do not believe that this is a gang-motivated homicide. I believe there's personal aspects involved."

The shooting at the shopping centre also left six people wounded and a pregnant woman needed hospital treatment after she was trampled.

Facebook. Site testing kid-friendly access

Though Facebook bans children under 13, millions of them have profiles on the site by lying about their age.

The company is now testing ways to allow those kids to participate without needing to lie. This would likely be under parental supervision, such as by connecting children's accounts to their parents' accounts.

Such information collection is central to Facebook. Every photo or status update a kid posts on Facebook could count as information collection. Many companies consider the parental-consent requirement too burdensome, so they simply ban all children under 13 instead.

There are an estimated 7.5 million kids under 13 on Facebook, out of more than 900 million users worldwide.

In a statement, Facebook noted that many recent reports have highlighted "just how dif-

Air Canada shareholders OK airline's executive pay plan

Looking low-cost.

Company still focusing on discount carrier at annual meeting

Air Canada's top executive says the launch of a new low-cost carrier remains a top priority for the airline, as it grapples to make profound changes to the way it does business.

"We need to participate in this segment of the market in one manner or another," Air Canada chief executive Calin Rovinescu said Monday in a speech to shareholders.

He said Air Canada is sensitive to the views of its pilots and wants to make sure that whatever time frame it takes with the low-cost carrier is consistent with the discussions of the arbitration process set up by the federal government.

The pilots are one of two major labour groups at Air Canada without a collective agreement. The other union is the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents repair and ramp crews.

Both disputes will be resolved by a mediator ordered by the federal government, which brought in back-to-work legislation after Air Canada locked out the pilots and the Machinists announced they would go on strike. Shareholders overwhelmingly approved a new policy on executive compensation while Air Canada pilots held an information picket outside the downtown hotel.

The largely symbolic resolution passed with 91.85 per cent approval.

The main opposition came from Air Canada Pilots Association president Paul Strachan.

He argued giving double-digit compensation increases to top executives while extolling austerity to employees is hypocritical. Pay for Air Canada's CEO fell 12 per cent last year but payouts of the airline's other four highest-paid top executives soared even though continued losses drove the airline's share price down more than 70 per cent.

Jury selection starts for Baldwin vs. Costner suit

Actor Kevin Costner arrives at Federal Court in New Orleans with two unidentified women on Monday. BILL HABER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jury selection began Monday in a legal fight between two Hollywood stars over investments in a device used to try to clean up BP's 2010 oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

In his lawsuit, actor Stephen Baldwin claims Kevin Costner and a business partner duped Baldwin and a friend out of their share of an $18-million deal for BP to buy oil-separating centrifuges after the April 2010 spill.

U.S. District Judge Martin L.C. Feldman told prospective jurors they could not be influenced by the celebrity status of Baldwin and Costner.

Feldman asked the potential jurors whether the entertainers' on-screen portrayals compromised the ability to deliver an objective verdict. No one in the pool said they would feel influenced.

Baldwin and his friend, Spyridon Contogouris, said they didn't know about the deal when they agreed to sell their shares of Ocean Therapy Solutions, a company that marketed the centrifuges to BP, for $1.4 million and $500,000, respectively.

BP ordered 32 of the centrifuges and deployed a few of the devices on a barge in June 2010. BP capped its blown-out Macondo well the following month and kept more oil from leaking until the well was permanently sealed in September 2010.

Baldwin and Contogouris claim they were deliberately excluded from a June 8 meeting between Costner, his business partner Patrick Smith and BP executive Doug Suttles, who agreed to make an $18-million deposit on a $52-million order for the 32 devices, according to the lawsuit.

Economy. Feds would respond in crisis: Flaherty

SURVIVING YOUR BEST FRIEND'S WEDDING

SHE

metronews.ca/shesays

It is officially wedding season. Both the time of year and my mid-to-late-twenty-something status mean that my once barren mailbox is now overflowing with invitations, save-the-dates and thank-you cards from betrothed friends and family members.

As spring rolls into summer, bridal banter seems to be at the top of the agenda at every social gathering. Everyone I know is attending, participating or initiating a wedding in the coming months. In fact, I am taking my inaugural run at being a bridesmaid this upcoming weekend.

Historically, bridesmaids and groomsmen have some interesting origins. Once upon a time, Roman law required that each wedding involve 10 witnesses dressed in similar clothing. The superstitious rationale behind this tradition was that the co-ordinating men and women would confuse any evil spirits present at the wedding and make it difficult to identify the actual bride and groom.

weekdays, out of province or internationally; they'll want multiple ceremonies, elaborate engagement parties, three separate bridal showers and week-long bachelorette getaways.

I know what you're thinking, oh that won't happen to me; my friends are just so easygoing. But be warned, even your chilled out bestie might have an inner bridezilla lurking inside of her.

Wedding-minutia madness can make a completely rational person relatively bonkers. A friend you've seen shrug off a pregnancy scare or an email breakup will freak out over finding the correct Pantone shade of lavender or choosing between a serif versus sans serif invitation font.

As a bridesmaid, you might be expected to fork over hundreds if not thousands of dollars on plane tickets, hotel rooms, outfits and alterations, gifts, hair, makeup, nails, and other items all in an effort to recreate the bride-to-be's Pinterest wedding vision board.

On the big day, your laborious bridesmaid experience will culminate in 24 hours of stressful jubilation. You'll smile gracefully at the photographer, in that pre-selected shade of lilac lipstick that you'll never wear again, because you are truly happy for your friend and because in just a few hours, it'll all be over.

John Carter

Director. Andrew Stanton

Stars. Taylor Kitsch, Lynn Collins, Willem Dafoe

Disney's sci-fi fantasy bomb cost somewhere between a squillion and a bajillion dollars to make and sell. So where did all that loot go? The screenplay by writer/director Andrew Stanton (Finding Nemo, WALL-E) and co-writers Mark Andrews and Michael Chabon is far too faithful to Burroughs' ancient babble, while at the same time being deaf to modern interests. Such things as humour, thrills and genuine jeopardy are seriously lacking here. John Carter, a peace-loving space traveller from the Wild West (played by Canada's Taylor Kitsch), is smothered by CGI and bad dialogue as he journeys from Civil War-era Arizona to Mars, here called Barsoom. On this red planet, the Tharks are at odds with each other and apparently at war with the bloodthirsty Zodangans. And what of the Heliumites? Will peacenik Carter stay and fight? John Carter shares more with a Dr. Seuss cartoon than it does with any self-respecting live-action interstellar adventure.

olis, a dark drama for director David Cronenberg.

On Monday the cast reunited with their director for a press conference I hosted at a downtown Toronto hotel in advance of the movie opening in theatres on Friday.

The tone of the conference was light, and the camaraderie of the cast obvious. Here are some of the highlights:

"I don't know what I was more excited about," said Hampshire, "having David bend over me and show Robert how to get a prostate exam, or Rob bending over me and getting one."

Quoted

"I don't know what I was more excited about — having David (Cronenberg) bend over me and show Robert how to get a prostate exam, or Rob bending over me and getting one."

Attress Emily Hampshire on one of her favourite Cosmopolis scenes.

"You don't have to choose," quipped Cronenberg.

Cronenberg also offered up some tongue-in-cheek advice for filmmakers. "I use a little Apple program called iDirector. A little green light goes on if it is OK, or a red light if you need to do another take. It's pretty straightforward. You can all use it."

Later the director commented on why he wanted his actors to speak the lines of the script exactly as written. "I don't want the actors to be screenwriters," he said, "they're not designed for that."

"There were no rewrites," Pattinson chimes in.

"Normally that is the first thing you think about as an actor. And you are so used to just changing it the whole time, on every single movie, that with this, once you suddenly got to the idea that you are not changing anything, the script is fine, it's you that are the problem, at least you knew one thing."

Pattinson has a tour-de-force scene at the end of the film, a 22-page two-hander opposite Oscar nominee Paul Giamatti. The Sideways star took a quick break from shooting Rock of Ages in Miami to appear in Cosmopolis.

"Fortunately the other movie wasn't terribly demanding on me," Giamatti joked. "It was a musical that I was doing and I didn't have to sing or dance. I just had to show up and crack jokes."

"I was panicked about it," he says of his quick turnaround in Toronto.

"This thing was intimidating. The length and the language. So I bothered everyone on the other movie to read this thing with me. Fortunately Malin Ackerman made a great Rob Pattinson."

"She was fantastic. I was very disappointed when actually I got here and it was Rob."

"feel like throwing up."

Now, Celine Dion is empathizing with her — although very diplomatically, considering the chart-topper essentially let her take a decade-long vacation from the real world and its relentless department store playlists.

"My Heart Will Go On gave me the opportunity to be associated with a classic that will live forever."

If I just count how many times I've sung it, maybe it'll get me sick," she said on the Today Show yesterday. "If she feels tired just hearing it, and, like, throwing up, I'm glad she was not the one singing it."

As much as we want to enjoy this, the sad, dejected echo of her signature chest thump is getting in the way.

SNOW WHITE GETS SERIOUS

In her new film Snow White and The Huntsman, Twilight actress Kristen Stewart plays a dark and violent version of the classic fairy tale heroine. She's up for a sword fight, knows how to throw a punch and lead an army of men to fight her enemies. But off screen she also had to conquer a long-term personal issue.

STEWART FACES FEAR AND SADDLES UP

romina.mcguinness@metro.lu

Kristen Stewart isn't scared of blood sucking vampires or monstrous werewolves. She's not even put off by drinking her own blood. But there is one thing she is scared of ... horses. As a youngster she broke and dislocated her elbow falling off a horse and has been reluctant to get back in the saddle ever since. But much to Stewart's dismay, her Snow White character in Snow White and The Huntsman is no damsel in distress and spends most of the film on horse back as she escapes the clutches of the Evil Queen. Metro spoke to Sam Dent, Stewart's horse riding instructor, to find out how she finally overcame her fear of falling.

Overcoming fear
"I could tell she was nervous from day one. But that's only natural for someone scarred by a bad fall to let their nerves get the best of them, but there isn't much you can actually do to help other than reassure them," Dent tells Metro.

Taking the reins

Horse riding is an exercise in itself and you'll need to be fighting fit if you're going to give it your all ... and not fall off the horse. As an exercise, the effort required to remain seated in an upright position has both cardio and toning benefits, especially in the gallop. But unlike most sports, you're not in control. "The horse — a very powerful creature — is," says Dent. "If they don't want to do something, you need to be physically and mentally strong to handle them."

Lucky for Dent, Stewart was a keen learner

"Kristen was fully concentrated on conquering her fears. Her and Rusty, her horse (they got on great, by the way) would start by spending 15 to 20 minutes in the enclosed arena. Once she got comfortable, we would go into canter (a three time gait with the horse placing one leg, then two together and then the remaining leg on the ground) in the open field. It's funny because when she was on her horse, her nerves didn't show and she never did anything reckless. She was listening and acting like she was confident, even though she wasn't."

Being a Bare devil

Another challenge for Stewart was learning how to ride bareback — that is, without a saddle. Removing the saddle is a risk, as it requires the rider to exert a higher level of balance and coordination in order to remain on the horse. The absence of a supporting tree and padding between the rider's seat bones and the horse's spine means it's not exactly the most comfortable riding style. "Bareback riding is very fatiguing as you no longer have the saddle to keep you steady" adds Dent. Thankfully, Stewart was fit enough to cope, thanks to her stunt training with the 'boys,' co-stars Chris Hemsworth, Sam Claflin and co.

What did Dent think of her pupil's overall performance?

"Kristen was completely knackered by the end of filming as she had taken up so much extra work physically. The actual riding she did was pretty basic but she's a good rider."

But what about the Huntsman's riding skills?

We know Chris Hemsworth has the advantage of an action hero past, but did this help him ride a horse?

"Chris was a natural. I just needed to bring him back up to speed because even though he'd ridden before, his style was a little too 'cowboy-ish.' I had to straighten him up a bit," reveals Dent. Want to know a fun fact? Hemsworth's horse was called Pinocchio. Not what you'd expect a hunter's horse to be called, but cute.

Being a freelance writer, I generally call local cafés and coffee shops my “office.”

What do I look for in an establishment? Three things: good coffee, good food and, of course, wi-fi! Deville Coffee is a slick café inside Fashion Central, a building that houses clothing that always makes me feel slightly underdressed.

For a quick bite, I ordered the rosemary ham sandwich ($9). It came lightly toasted with a side salad.

The sandwich was fairly good, lots of ham, gooey cheese and dijon mustard, which gave it a kick. But there was sliced pineapple in the sandwich that left the bread pretty soggy.

Also, the side salad was simply a handful of greens. I wished they had tossed in some more substantial veggies. That being said, the quality of ingredients was there, so I think I may have just opted for the wrong menu item.

Peach Chicken Sauté. This easy one-skillet meal is ready in minutes

Ingredients

- 15 ml (1 tbsp) vegetable oil
- 1/2 large onion, thinly sliced
- 1 clove minced garlic
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 can (398 ml/14 oz) cling peach slices
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) maple syrup
- 250 ml (1 cup) snow peas
- 1 small red or green pepper, thinly sliced

1. In a large skillet, heat vegetable oil over medium heat. Add onion and garlic and cook, stirring occasionally, for 2 minutes. Add chicken breasts and cook for 3 to 4 minutes on each side until browned.

2. Meanwhile, drain juice or light syrup from peaches into a measuring cup. Add to skillet along with maple syrup and stir, scraping up any brown bits from the bottom of the pan. Add peach slices, snow peas and red pepper. Cover pan with lid and cook for about 5 minutes, until chicken is cooked through.

Easy Puttanesca Sauce. Try this classic Italian sauce over any pasta

Ingredients

- 8 oz sliced bacon or pancetta, cut into small pieces
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 anchovy fillets, minced
- 1 large onion, diced
- 1 red bell pepper, chopped
- 1 green bell pepper, chopped
- 1/2 tsp each dried oregano, basil and thyme leaves
- 1/4 tsp red pepper flakes
- 1 can (28 oz) crushed tomatoes
- 1/2 cup Kalamata olives, pitted and chopped
- 1 tbsp chopped capers
- 2 tbsp balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- Salt and ground black pepper

1. In a large saucepan over medium-high heat, sauté the bacon, garlic, anchovies, onion, red and green peppers, oregano, basil, thyme and red pepper flakes for about 10 minutes or until the bacon is cooked and the onion is tender.

2. Add the tomatoes, olives and capers; bring to a simmer. Let simmer for about 10 minutes for flavours to meld. Stir in the Parmesan and balsamic vinegar, then season with salt and pepper to taste.

Give your grilled steak some pizzazz with this fruity salsa

Peppered Beef Steaks

Top peppered beef steaks with caramelized onions and fruit salsa for a sensational grilling choice this spring and summer.

The salsa makes good use of fruits and vegetables that are readily available in spring. Frozen diced mango works just as well as fresh.

1. Caramelized onions: Dice enough red onion to measure 50 ml (1/4 cup); set aside, reserving for salsa. Cut remaining onions in half and brush with olive oil. Place on grill over medium heat, turning occasionally, for 20 minutes or until tender. Transfer onions to a medium bowl. With kitchen shears, cut into large chunks; stir in brown sugar, balsamic vinegar, salt and pepper. Set aside.

2. Fruit salsa: In a medium bowl, combine reserved diced red onion, tomatoes, mango, cucumber, cilantro, lime peel, juice and pulp; season with salt and pepper and refrigerate. (Salsa may be made several hours in advance.)

3. Season medallions with salt and cracked black pep-

Ingredients

- 2 red onions
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) each olive oil, packed brown sugar and balsamic vinegar
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) each grape tomatoes, halved, or 2 plum tomatoes, diced
- 1 ripe mango, peeled and diced
- 75 ml (1/3 cup) diced English cucumber
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) chopped fresh cilantro
- 1/2 lime (grated peel, juice and pulp)
- 4 rib-eye grilling medallions or tenderloin grilling steaks, 2.5 cm (1 inch) thick
- Salt and cracked (very coarsely ground) black pepper, to taste per (5 ml/1 tsp pepper for a medium-spiced steak). Place on a greased grill over medium-high heat; cook, turning once, for 5 to 6 minutes per side for medium-rare doneness.

4. Serve with fruit salsa and warm caramelized onions.

Advice

Love your age and let the haters hate

Dear Sisters,
As a woman approaches 40, society and even popular culture begin to get nasty (in all sorts of ways). One particularly galling change though is that a 40-something woman enjoying a night out with the girls suddenly becomes labelled a "cougar" and is automatically reduced to a thing of ridicule — and this, regardless of her marital status. I hate that! So my question is, can a woman of a certain age still have fun? If so, how?

Miaow

Claire: Dear Miaow, Let's face it; women themselves invented this kind of name-calling, so before I share my infinite wisdom, promise me that in the name of all women — yes, even that Lucite-heel sporting, lip-liner-loving, wrinkled-cleavage-showing female of a certain age who's eyeing the barely pubescent waiter over there: do not participate.

As for my wisdom — we all know that one of the joys of approaching 40 is being happier in your own (slightly less firm) skin.

Get out there and let the opinions fall where they may — you've earned your pleasures along with every wrinkle.

Andrea: Dear Miaow, I'm not a woman in my 40s. As a matter of fact, I somewhat dread that age where you're still young, hip and cool in every respect except on your driver's license. Reason being that validation suddenly has to be earned in a different way than a short skirt. Oh my, so much more work! Only recently, have I experienced the weird dread of being "the older woman" — working in the party scene and suddenly surrounded by gorgeous, stick-figured Chihuahuas who are SO excited for Breaking Dawn.

It's a quiet feeling of wisdom and patience, the same feeling that will help you through those moments where society tries to put you in a box. No one can replace your experience on this planet, and no product or low-cut dress can compete with it. Haters gonna hate!

What's a poor boy to do?

Chivalry. Dating when you're cash strapped

SARA DIMERMAN
Life@metronews.ca

You would think that in today's liberated world, men wouldn't be expected to pay for every dinner or coffee date. Despite evolution amongst the sexes, my bet is that if you were to take a poll, most women would say that they expect to be treated — on the first few dates, for sure. They'd probably say that if their date suggested splitting the bill, that he was either cheap or not into her.

Gone are the days that women stayed at home to raise kids and men were the breadwinners. Today most women, young and older, work as many hours as men and some even earn more than the opposite sex. So, why then do women expect to be treated? Perhaps this is our last ditch attempt to hold onto a thread of chivalry. Most women (especially those younger) aren't offended if their dates don't walk on the side closest to the street or open her car door first. In fact, many prefer to be equal partners. But often not in the finance department.

So, what's a poor boy to do? What if he's working in a retail department store for minimum wage, paying rent and car insurance and barely has enough money left for groceries? What if he's widowed, living on a fixed income and careful about what he spends? Does this mean that he's destined to sit at home with only the television as a companion? What if he's a really good catch in so many other ways? Doesn't he deserve a chance at love too?

Sure he does, but sorry to say men, fair or no fair, chances are that you're going to have to go through your piggy bank for some loonies and toonies — even if it's just to meet a prospective mate over coffee. Because no matter how liberated women are, men are still expected to take the lead when it comes to handing over the loot on a first, and maybe even second or third date.

Here are some tips (not the money kind), for both gents and ladies:

FOR THE GENTS: Speak up

If you're legitimately cash strapped, then speak up. Timing is key though. I'd suggest not sharing your financial position prior to the first date, because no matter how kind and caring she is, this may be a turn off. She might even suggest you find a better job, or a job period.

Wait until the end of your first, or if you can afford it — second date, and then let her know the truth. Share that you are in between jobs, living on a fixed income, having to pay child support or whatever the truth is, and ask how she feels about occasionally (or always) going dutch on your dates. Let her know that you not dining and dazzling her with expensive dates has nothing to do with how you're feeling towards her, but rather related to your financial position.

Even though this may be all the money he has, he could still be a good guy. ISTOCK

FOR THE LADIES: Listen with concern

If he has the courage to tell you the truth, acknowledge what he's saying and share how you feel. If you are used to being dined and dazzled, let him know this and share whether you are interested in continuing seeing him under the circumstances.

If he's a really great guy, despite being cash strapped, consider whether his financial position is all important. Is financial success and independence high on your priority list? Are you willing to pay your own way in order to continue seeing him? Do you make more than enough to support both of you?

Would you like to suggest occasionally paying for him too?

FOR THE GENTS: What to do if she backs off

If you're an older gentleman back on the dating scene, many women your age who have been part of more traditional relationships, may be uncomfortable with paying their own way. They may even see you as being ungentlemanly. Recognize that your proposal may be different to what she is used to.

Try to communicate and compromise further if you fear losing her. If she's backing off for other reasons, then perhaps she's not the right mate for you.

FOR THE LADIES: If you suspect he's not telling the truth

If he talks about buying a new car and going with his pals to Vegas in the same breath as sharing being on a fixed income, you may be less sensitive to his plight. Call him on it. Perhaps you are concerned about where he places his priorities.

Sounding off on napkins at the dinner table

askcharlesthebutler@metronews.ca
For more, visit charlesmacpherson.com

A reader of my column recently complained that I did not understand the correct etiquette for table napkins and explained in her very rude email how she felt I was absolutely wrong.

But before I continue, I do wish to make one point perfectly clear: I do fact check my material for both accuracy and logic before I submit it to my editors at Metro. The reader specifically complained how I am wrong to say "In the event that you must leave the table, do not ever leave your dinner napkin on the table, leave it on your chair."

The reader instead insisted a dinner napkin is always left on the table to the left of the forks, unfolded, while you temporarily excuse yourself from the table.

Interestingly enough, Emily Post, Etiquette, 17th edition, page 386 says "Put your napkin to the left side of your plate when the meal ends or whenever you excuse yourself from the table."

And Amy Vanderbilt Complete book of Etiquette, 1952, page 252 says "If for any reason, you must leave the table during the meal, place the used napkin casually, not refolded, to the left of your fork"

However there is another side to this coin. Pamela Eyring, President of The Protocol School of Washington says the napkin is always left "Unfolded on your chair. When it is left unfolded on the table this is the 'silent service signal' that you are not returning."

In addition, Mr. Louis Dussault, who has been the chief of protocol for both the City of Montreal and the Province of Quebec, says "The napkin is put on the chair and (optional) the guest pushes the chair under the table."

At my Butler School in Toronto we teach in table manners class that the napkin is always left on the chair, not the table, until the end of the meal.

So where does this leave us? Remember in etiquette, sometimes there is no right or wrong answer but a variance in customs and cultures, and more importantly etiquette teaches us how to best interact and accept others' differences.

There's no lack of summer activities for teens and young adults but here's a summer project I'd like to add to their list. And it comes with a carrot attached — ten $1,000 scholarships. That's worth giving up a bit of gaming, TV or chat time to enter.

The annual scholarships are provided by Brandes Investment Partners, a mutual fund company, (brandesscholarship.ca) for those 16-22 years old — entry deadline is July 20.

The warm-up is a financial personality quiz called The Money Factor. Though I'm a tad past the age of 22 I took it and discovered I'm on the boring side financially.

The quiz is fun and quite interesting with youth-friendly questions about coin tosses and what to do with found money. At the end you're encouraged to apply for one of the ten scholarships. But it's not just easy money because applicants have to submit a 250-word essay about their money personality and three things learned from the quiz.

What I particularly like about the Brandes initiative is that it tilts toward investing. The focus on money education these days tends to be about debt, credit, saving and spending — important arrows in everyone's financial quiver.

As well, employees are increasingly being handed the reins to their workplace pension programs and being asked to make decisions without having a clue about what they are doing. Most employees don't know anything about the investments in these plans, never mind fees charged and risk levels.

Will death kill a home's price?

FUN AND FRUGAL
Leslie Scorgie
money@metronews.ca
Twitter: @Lesleyscorgie

A few weeks ago I shifted my home buying criteria away from the over-heated inner-city detached house market to Plan B; an inner-city condo with high rental income potential for the future. I plan to live in the property for a year until I find a more affordable detached home for my primary residence, at which point I'd rent the condo out as an investment property.

Using my new criteria, on Friday afternoon, I found 'the one'. I walked into the home and was captivated by its character, charm, views, and layout. Better yet, the price is discounted to the market and the location couldn't be better.

Feeling good vibes, I sat down with my realtor

Sunday afternoon to make an offer.... until we were interrupted by a phone call from the seller's realtor who disclosed that there had been a death by suicide on the property only a few months prior. This explained the discounted price, request for quick possession and the long length of time on the market.

I was stunned and saddened to hear of this terrible tragedy; so shocked, in fact, that my emotions took over and rather than being my usual frugal self I couldn't go through with making the offer that same day.

I sought advice from close friends and family members to see what they would do if they were in my shoes. Their opinions are split 50/50. The first group said to steer clear of the property because the local rumour mill would never forget the incident; thus resale ability and rental income potential could be jeopardized.

The other group suggested I put my feelings/superstitions aside and scoop up the deeply discounted property.

Real estate disclosure laws require sellers to disclose any fact that could be material to a buyer's decision to buy the property. Facts about the property are considered material if their disclosure would affect the value or desirability of the property. Is a death by suicide a material fact that affects the value or desirability of a property? I believe it is. But I also believe that for some buyers it matters a lot whereas for others, they don't care.

The lesson in all this is that there are material considerations that go beyond a simple home inspection of any property. Foreclosure and death, for instance, are not structural issues. But they can significantly lower the price of a property.

From a buyer's perspective, this represents an opportunity to save thousands. But, selling it down the road could be a challenge. By questioning realtors and doing independent research, buyers can determine if there are expensive disclosure issues.

I'm not certain my love of this particular home, nor the tens of thousands of dollars in savings, outweighs my sad feelings towards the tragic incident. I might have to walk away from the deal.

A buyer's dilemma

Kings continue their sprint towards cup

NHL. Quick leads Los Angeles to shutout over Devils to take 3-0 series lead in final

The Los Angeles Kings are on the verge of greatness. It's only going to take one more win for them to be crowned Stanley Cup champions for the first time.

On a night when Wayne Gretzky dropped the puck on a ceremonial faceoff, the Kings moved one step closer to joining The Great One's 1988 Edmonton Oilers as the most dominant NHL champions in history.

Jonathan Quick continued his otherworldly play Monday by stopping all 22 shots he faced as Los Angeles drove a dagger through the hearts of the New Jersey Devils with a 4-0 victory. The Kings hold a 3-0 series lead for a fourth time this post-season.

"If we win one more game, I hope the San Andreas fault can take it," Kings forward Dustin Penner said.

It appears as though the Devils share something in common with each of the Kings previous three opponents — they have no answer for Quick, who looks like a slam dunk selection to win the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP.

The goaltender was particularly sharp in the first period, when the score was still 0-0 and the Devils enjoyed a 5-on-3 advantage for 59 seconds. He got his pad on a dangerous chance from Ilya Kovalchuk to keep New Jersey from getting its first real burst of momentum in the series.

"You've got to find a way to score goals," Devils forward David Clarkson said. "We've been putting the puck on the net. Like I said we've been working hard ... and we're going to continue to push. We're not done yet."

Alec Martinez ended up

opening the scoring at 5:40 of the second period immediately after Quick denied David Clarkson on a dangerous opportunity. Teammate Dwight King got four whacks at a puck that was lodged under Martin Brodeur's pads before Martinez knocked it into the net.

Anze Kopitar, Jeff Carter and Justin Williams went on to beat Brodeur as Los Angeles showed the form of a champion.

After finishing as the eighth seed in the Western Conference, the Kings have clinically picked apart Vancouver, St. Louis, Phoenix and now the Devils, compiling a 15-2 record along the way. The only other team to show such dominance under the NHL's current playoff format is the 1988 Oilers, who went 16-2.

It was the first time Houston had the top pick in the draft since 1992, when the Astros selected Phil Nevin — passing on a young shortstop named Derek Jeter, who went five spots later to the Yankees.

Canadian subs in for Alves at UFC 149

Light-heavyweight Thiago Silva and welterweight Thiago Alves are off the UFC 149 card July 21 in Calgary due to injury.

Silva was due to meet former 205-pound champion Mauricio (Shogun) Rua while Alves was slated to face Siyar Bahadurzada, who was an injury replacement for Yoshihiro Akiyama.

Chris Clements of London, Ont., will step in for Alves at the Scotiabank Saddledome. Clements (11-4) won a split decision in his UFC debut at UFC 145 over Keith Wisniewski.

League plans for replacement refs

The NFL will start hiring and training possible replacement officials with a deal not yet completed with the NFL Referees Association.

Talks between the league and the officials broke down after two mediation sessions that followed nine bargaining negotiations since October.

A session was held Sunday under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and the NFLRA said the league "terminated negotiations" on Monday.

NHL. Pens shore up crease with addition of Vokoun

The Pittsburgh Penguins acquired Tomas Vokoun from the Washington Capitals and then signed the veteran goaltender to a two-year deal.

Vokoun, whose negotiating rights were traded for a seventh-round pick in the upcoming NHL draft, will make $4 million US with Pittsburgh.

The 35-year-old goalie, who waived a no-movement clause in order for the trade to happen, was set to become an unrestricted free agent July 1.

The move gives Pittsburgh an established backup to starter Marc-Andre Fleury,

Sharapova survives in Paris

Maria Sharapova returns a shot to Klara Zakopalova at the French Open on Monday in Paris. After breezing through her first three matches, second-seeded Sharapova got stymied as much by her opponent as her own shaky play, to say nothing of the windy, damp conditions Monday at Roland Garros. She persevered in a 6-4, 6-7 (5), 6-2 victory over 44th-ranked Zakopalova in a match that took three hours, 11 minutes. CLIVE BRUNSKILL/GETTY IMAGES

Once unbeatable Spurs now on the brink of elimination

NBA. Thunder win their third-straight and get crucial road victory over San Antonio

Kevin Durant scored 27 points and the Oklahoma City Thunder are on the brink of the NBA Finals, beating the San Antonio Spurs 108-103 in Game 5 on Monday night and moving within a victory of a series knockout.

Russell Westbrook added 23 and the Thunder took a 3-2 lead in a wildly entertaining Western Conference finals. Looking invincible while carrying a 20-win streak a week ago, the Spurs have lost three straight and are on the verge of a stunning collapse.

Manu Ginobili scored 34 in a smashing return to the starting lineup. But trailing 106-103 and the Spurs down to their last shot, Ginobili missed an off-balance 3-point-er in the final seconds.

Game 6 is Wednesday night in Oklahoma City, where the Thunder can punch their ticket to the NBA Finals in the place they haven't lost all post-season.

They're bringing home just what they needed: the must-win on the road if they're going to pull this series out.

After remaining unbeaten for 50 days before arriving in Oklahoma City, San Antonio has lost three games in five day. They now must win two straight to avoid seeing their last best chance to win in a title in the Duncan era end.

"Championship teams win on the road," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said. "Oklahoma City just did that."

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

Get out and about and see and be seen. This is one of the best times of the year for travel and social activities, and it's not a bad time for romance either.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

You are no doubt incredibly busy at the moment but there are more important things than work going on in your world.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

While a new relationship may be exciting the planets warn it is unlikely to stand the test of time, so don't allow yourself to get too emotionally involved.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

You will behave in an excessive way and if there is someone you have admired from afar you may not be ♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22.

Before You won't have to do much to get yourself noticed today: heads will turn as you walk down the street.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

You will act out of character today and some people may think you have taken leave of your senses. Maybe you have, but what of it?

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

At some point today you will realize that nothing ever really happens by chance, that all experiences — both positive and negative — are designed to help you reach your potential.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

Something unusual will happen today. It will be exciting and it will be the kind of thing you want to happen again.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

21. How can you improve a relationship? To start with you could try being more forgiving.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20.

20. What is your purpose? If you don't know the answer to that question you must make it your mission to find out over the next few days.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18.

Don't worry about tomorrow and the struggles it might bring, think only of the day ahead and the joys you are free to experience.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

Sit back and let the world entertain you today. Both at home and at work people will go out of their way to bring a smile to your face.
